In May 2020, the College approved slight modifications to the beginning of the Fall Semester. Instead of beginning the semester on Wednesday, September 7, which typically results in a Monday class that is not a Monday class day, the semester will begin on Thursday, September 3 and we will hold classes on Labor Day, September 7. The Labor Day classes will take place remotely to avoid the costs and challenges of occupying the building and commuting on Labor Day with altered transit schedules, reduced UPT personnel, and additional utility costs. Most importantly, these changes allow us to regularize the schedule and prevent confusion for students, especially students new to campus.
