

Polish your skills and dedicate yourself to finding and landing the job you want.

Update

Update your resume and your LinkedIn profile with your recent experiences.

Choose your career direction

Don't worry if you haven't determined what career paths might interest you. Take our recommended self-assessment, YouScience. Explore career paths on Vault.com.

Prepare for your job search

Make sure your resume is in top shape. Prepare for interviews using our interview prep page. Continue to build your professional network by engaging with LinkedIn and The People List, by setting up informational interviews with people in your fields of interest.

Apply for jobs

Once you've done your research and honed your skills, it's time to start applying. Opportunities are posted throughout the year on KingsConnect and in KingsWeekly. Networking, though, is the top source of jobs because 80% of the job market is hidden—that is, 80% of job openings are never posted. So do informational interviews, attend OVCD events—roundtables, FishBowl events, marketplace visits, and more.

Plan for post-graduation

Life after college may be daunting, but we can help you set the right path. If full-time employment isn't your first choice for post-graduate life, consider graduate school, working abroad, or volunteering.

Reflect on your experiences

Record your observations in a personal journal to use in your job search or strategy plan. Review and answer these questions to better understand your values, strengths, and interests.

Complete the first destination survey

We'll send you a survey 6 months after graduation. Be sure to complete it, so we can update you on what your classmates are doing!
