

Hone your skills, gather career information, and solidify your major.

Choose your major and career direction

Take our recommended career assessment, YouScience, learn about career paths on Vault.com, and meet with a Career Development career coach to talk through your decisions and preliminary goals.

Update your profile and resume

Update your LinkedIn profile when you declare your major and after you gain experience.
Update your resume, too.

Take workshops to gain skills

Learn how to write cover letters, network, and interview.

Search for internships

Employers want to see work experience on your resume. Opportunities are posted throughout the year on KingsConnect, in KingsWeekly, on LinkedIn, and on internship databases like UCAN and internships.com.

Gather career information

Job shadow an alumnus or family friend during school breaks, do informational interviews with practitioners in your fields of interest, attend an OVCD event: roundtables, marketplace visits, and FishBowl recruiting sessions.

Prepare for interviews

To learn about your field of interest and to build your network, do informational interviews. But to prepare for job interviews, check out our interview prep page and practice with a friend.

Plan your summer

You might want intern/work in NYC this summer, which is fine. But it's also fine to intern/work in your hometown, study abroad, or volunteer with an organization—just getting experience is helpful.

Reflect on your experiences

Each year, you'll have new experiences. Use these questions to guide your reflection.
